

International Parliamentary Network for Education

Canada and Education Cannot Wait A briefing for members of parliament

Armed conflict and climate disasters are causing unprecedented levels of forced displacement. The COVID pandemic has put huge pressure on health and food systems and resulted in school closures which deprived millions of children up to two years of schooling.

As a result the right of children and young people to education is being disrupted, denied, and in some cases, entirely destroyed.

New analysis shows that 222 million school-aged children are affected by crises globally and in need of urgent educational support.

At the same time educational responses in emergencies remain severely underfunded, made worse by rapidly increasing needs.

In response, Education Cannot Wait - the UN global fund for education in emergencies - has launched its replenishment campaign which aims to raise $1.5 billion USD to reach 20 million of the most vulnerable children affected by crises between 2023 - 2026

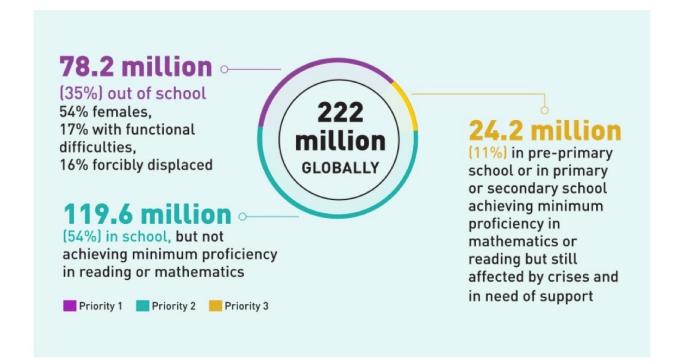

A world in crisis

Today, humanitarian needs remain at historically high levels, with conflicts, climate disasters and displacements affecting more people than ever before. In 2021, an estimated 306.0 million people were assessed to be in need, 90.4 million more than in 2019 before the Covid-19 pandemic.

Education at risk

According to a new Education Cannot Wait study, the number of crisis-affected children and adolescents who need education support is estimated at 222 million. This is much higher than a previous estimate of 75 million from 2016 and indicates an alarming trend.

Of the 222 million crisis-affected children and adolescents in need of urgent education support, the study indicates that as many as 78.2 million are out of school, and close to 120 million are in school, but not achieving minimum proficiency in math or reading.

The vast majority of these children are in countries supported by ECW's ground-breaking multi-year investments, including Afghanistan, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Ethiopia, Mali, Nigeria, Pakistan, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan and Yemen.

State of funding for education in emergencies

These alarming new figures combine with the fact that education in emergencies and protracted crises remains chronically underfunded, and that the funding gap has gotten worse since the COVID-19 pandemic.

In 2021, humanitarian funding for education in emergencies reached a record level of $807 million. But, with funding needs growing even quicker due to conflict, climate change and the pandemic, this sum was insufficient to provide millions of children safe, inclusive, and quality education.

Across UN-led humanitarian appeals, the education sector was just 22% funded in 2021 – half of what it was in 2018.

This leaves millions of children without the support necessary to return to school and resume their learning.

Education Cannot Wait: the world's global fund for education in emergencies

Education Cannot Wait (ECW) works with partners to provide a unique combination of rapid education responses in emergencies and multi-year investments in complex protracted crises.

Since its establishment in 2016, ECW has reached almost 7 million children and youth in some of the toughest, complex crises across 40 countries. Yet millions of girls and boys are still left behind and need urgent support.

$1.5 billion to reach 20 million children and young people

With funding of $1.5 billion for its next strategic period 2023 - 2026, Education Cannot Wait will:

- Get 12 million children and adolescents back into school following a new emergency or the escalation of a crisis.
- Provide three years of holistic education support to 8 million children and adolescents in protracted crises.
- Support 12 million girls with quality education.

• Ensure 2 million children and adolescents with disabilities in crises receive a quality education.

Education Cannot Wait will also make a vital contribution to more effective financing and to strengthening the wider education in emergencies sector, indirectly reaching millions more children.

Education Cannot Wait's High-Level Financing Conference on the 16-17th February in Geneva – hosted by Switzerland, and sponsored by Germany, Niger, Norway, and South Sudan – will be the opportunity for governments to turn commitments into action, by making funding contributions of at least $1.5 billion for the period 2023 - 2026.

Canada's support to ECW is more critical than ever

Canada has a proud record of global leadership on international development. Through the Charlevoix declaration on quality education for girls, adolescent girls and women in developing countries, Canada committed to improving educational access and outcomes for marginalized learners, including girls, refugees and displaced children and youth.

In its recent report to Parliament, Global Affairs Canada confirmed that Canada's Charlevoix $400mn investment has reached 4 million girls and women across 55 projects in Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Middle East. Yet these life-changing programs are sunsetting. That means 4 million girls are facing an uncertain future, in addition to millions more waiting in the wings for their opportunity to learn.

The Canadian Government has also been central to ECW's exponential impact since its inception in 2016. Its continued support is crucial in setting an example for new and existing donor governments to help ensure ECW meets its new funding target. Canada cannot turn the tide on the global education crisis alone, but it can lead by example and mobilize other world leaders to do the same. This starts with an ambitious long-term investment to ECW.

From 2016 until 2021, Canada was the sixth largest financial contributor to the ECW, with a total amount of $60 million invested in the global education fund throughout this time.

The highest investment ECW received from Canada was in 2019 when Canada allocated $37.1million to the ECW, becoming the second largest donor country to the Fund. In 2021, Canada allocated 5.5$ million to ECW, placing Canada in the top five most significant ECW contributors along with the US, the UK, Norway and Lego Foundation.

Since the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic, Canada has allocated almost $12.5 million for Education Cannot Wait in new funding to address the effects of the pandemic on education.

By increasing its contribution to ECW, Canada can lead the way in ensuring that every girl receives a quality education. The Canadian International Education Policy Working Group is calling on the Canadian Government to make an early three-year pledge of CAD$150million to ECW, in order to meet the overall replenishment target and leverage ambition from other donors.

- ECW supports and prioritizes holistic learning outcomes to ensure that crisis-affected children develop foundational literacy and numeracy skills, while improving their well-being.
- 95% of ECW programmes are improving gender parity: helping to tackle gender inequality, child marriage and early marriage.
- ECW is taking steps to mitigate the impact of climate change in its investments and policy work.

Children can't be asked to wait to exercise their right to education

Children should not have to wait for wars to end or for the climate crisis to be resolved to have the opportunity to learn and thrive – it will be too late. We must act now to empower them with the education they need to achieve their dreams and become positive changemakers for themselves, their families, their communities and our world.

Show your support for children caught up in crises

Members of parliament have a vital role in advocating for and growing development assistance and humanitarian funding for education and encouraging their governments to contribute to the upcoming replenishment of Education Cannot Wait. There are a number of ways you can show your support for the education of children affected by humanitarian crises and Education Cannot Wait.

1. Ask the Prime Minister and Minister for International Development to pledge CAD$150 million over the next three years to Education Cannot Wait to support the education of around 1.4 million children and youth. Canada should make this announcement at ECW's High-Level Financing Conference in February 2023 to ensure visibility and incentivize other donors to step-up to this critical challenge.

2. Ask the Government of Canada to fulfill its mandate letter commitment to invest at least 10% of its total bilateral development assistance in quality education, moving toward the global standard of 15% by 2030 in line with the commitment to increase international development assistance every year towards 2030. This increase reflects the growing global need to maintain and restore access to quality education for the most marginalized learners, as well as fulfill Canada's own commitment to invest new resources to support access to education for girls, refugees, internally displaced children and those living with disabilities.

3. Make a statement in the House of Commons (SO-31) showing your support for Canada to make an ambitious pledge towards ECW at the replenishment conference in February, illustrating the growing need to increase investments towards global education in budget 2023.

More information

You can access Education Cannot Wait's Case for Investment at www.educationcannotwait.org/Case4Investment

For more information or any questions about IPNEd, including our work on education in emergencies and education financing, contact Lorena Chiran.

To become part of IPNEd's global network of parliamentary champions for education please email the address above or visit www.ipned.org/join-the-network.