Finland and Education Cannot Wait A briefing for members of parliament

Armed conflict and climate disasters are causing unprecedented levels of forced displacement. The COVID pandemic has put huge pressure on health and food systems and resulted in school closures which deprived millions of children up to two years of schooling.

As a result the right of children and young people to education is being disrupted, denied, and in some cases, entirely destroyed.

New analysis shows that 222 million school-aged children are affected by crises globally and in need of urgent educational support.

At the same time educational responses in emergencies remain severely underfunded, made worse by rapidly increasing needs.

In response, Education Cannot Wait - the UN global fund for education in emergencies - has launched its replenishment campaign which aims to raise $1.5 billion USD to reach 20 million of the most vulnerable children affected by crises between 2023 - 2026

A world in crisis

Today, humanitarian needs remain at historically high levels, with conflicts, climate disasters and displacements affecting more people than ever before. In 2021, an estimated 306.0 million people were assessed to be in need, 90.4 million more than in 2019 before the Covid-19 pandemic.

Education at risk

According to a new Education Cannot Wait study, the number of crisis-affected children and adolescents who need education support is estimated at 222 million. This is much higher than a previous estimate of 75 million from 2016 and indicates an alarming trend.

Of the 222 million crisis-affected children and adolescents in need of urgent education support, the study indicates that as many as 78.2 million are out of school, and close to 120 million are in school, but not achieving minimum proficiency in math or reading.

The vast majority of these children are in countries supported by ECW's ground-breaking multi-year investments, including Afghanistan, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Ethiopia, Mali, Nigeria, Pakistan, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan and Yemen.

State of funding for education in emergencies

These alarming new figures combine with the fact that education in emergencies and protracted crises remains chronically underfunded, and that the funding gap has gotten worse since the COVID-19 pandemic.

In 2021, humanitarian funding for education in emergencies reached a record level of $807 million. But, with funding needs growing even quicker due to conflict, climate change and the pandemic, this sum was insufficient to provide millions of children safe, inclusive, and quality education.

Across UN-led humanitarian appeals, the education sector was just 22% funded in 2021 – half of what it was in 2018.

This leaves millions of children without the support necessary to return to school and resume their learning.

Education Cannot Wait: the world's global fund for education in emergencies

Education Cannot Wait \(ECW\) works with partners to provide a unique combination of rapid education responses in emergencies and multi-year investments in complex protracted crises.

Since its establishment in 2016, ECW has reached almost 7 million children and youth in some of the toughest, complex crises across 40 countries. Yet millions of girls and boys are still left behind and need urgent support.

$1.5 billion to reach 20 million children and young people

With funding of $1.5 billion for its next strategic period 2023 - 2026, Education Cannot Wait will:

- Get 12 million children and adolescents back into school following a new emergency or the escalation of a crisis.
- Provide three years of holistic education support to 8 million children and adolescents in protracted crises.
- Support 12 million girls with quality education.

- Ensure 2 million children and adolescents with disabilities in crises receive a quality education.

Education Cannot Wait will also make a vital contribution to more effective financing and to strengthening the wider education in emergencies sector, indirectly reaching millions more children.

Education Cannot Wait's High-Level Financing Conference on the 16-17th February in Geneva – hosted by Switzerland, and sponsored by Germany, Niger, Norway, and South Sudan – will be the opportunity for governments to turn commitments into action, by making funding contributions of at least $1.5 billion for the period 2023 - 2026.

Finland's support to ECW is more critical than ever

The Finnish government's support to ECW is crucial in setting an example for new and existing donor governments to help ensure ECW meets its new funding target.

In 2020, at the 'Global Goal: Unite for our future', Finland's Minister for Development Cooperation and Foreign Trade, Mr. Ville Skinnari, announced €3 million (approximately US$3.3 million) in new funding to ECW. This is the first commitment to ECW by the Government of Finland.

The Foreign Affairs committee of the Finnish Parliament considers it is important that education is seen as Finland's priority in humanitarian aid and emphasizes the necessity of continuing education even in crises. Directing support to the international education support fund (Education Cannot Wait) would be a natural channel for this.

Finnish Church Aid, Save the Children Finland and Plan International are calling on the Finnish Government to make an early multi-year pledge of £20m to ECW, in order to meet the overall replenishment target and leverage ambition from other donors.

- ECW supports and prioritizes holistic learning outcomes to ensure that crisis-affected children develop foundational literacy and numeracy skills, while improving their well-being.
- 95% of ECW programmes are improving gender parity: helping to tackle gender inequality, child marriage and early marriage.

- ECW is taking steps to mitigate the impact of climate change in its investments and policy work.

Children can't be asked to wait to exercise their right to education

Children should not have to wait for wars to end or for the climate crisis to be resolved to have the opportunity to learn and thrive – it will be too late. We must act now to empower them with the education they need to achieve their dreams and become positive changemakers for themselves, their families, their communities and our world.

Show your support for children caught up in crises

Members of parliament have a vital role in advocating for and growing development assistance and humanitarian funding for education and encouraging their governments to contribute to the upcoming replenishment of Education Cannot Wait.

There are a number of ways you can show your support for the education of children affected by humanitarian crises and Education Cannot Wait.

1. Ask the Prime Minister, Foreign Secretary and Minister for Development to make an early multi-year pledge to Education Cannot Wait of £20 million to cover the period 2023-2026.
2. Ask the government to restore ODA to 0.7% of GNI, increase education's share of the ODA budget to 15% and ensure that at least 10% of Finland's humanitarian spending is dedicated to education in emergencies and protracted crises.
3. Add your name to the joint letter to Development Minister Ville Skinnari in support of Education Cannot Wait. Email info@ipned.org for more information.
